karriere*go!*

Region: Kanton Zürich

Shape the Future in Combining Tech Expertise and Industry-Specific knowledge!   Our client is an ICT infrastructure provider which is fully committed to provide innovative solutions to all customer's needs. One of the company's many drivers is the technological breakthrough to reshape the world in which we live and work. To strengthen the Consumer Business Group, we are looking for a competitive and qualified person as

Senior Engineer – Apps Developer (f/m)

Your Responsibilities   Expect exciting and challenging responsibilities as a software engineer in building custom applications in the Ecosystem. such as Apps, Games, Movies, Music, eBooks and VR. As a product engineer for mobile services and apps, your main tasks will be the development of custom applications. You will be responsible for building custom solutions from scratch and ensuring seamless integration with existing environments and systems for Apps in Banking and Social Media. If required, you will redesign, refactor and migrate the solutions to new platforms and together with your colleagues, you will review the architecture for outdated and lagging legacy systems. Your knowledge of the ecosystems in Switzerland and Western European countries will support the manufacturing of the software, solutions and products on the existing platform. You will support the project team in Apps developments, and you will collaborate and liaise with the WEU product center. Your responsibilities include participating in product demonstrations, meetings and supporting marketing materials. With great foresight, you will be on top of industry trends and be knowledgeable of competitors' current and future offerings.

Your Profile   You have at least five years' experience in a similar role and experience in the development of apps for the ecosystems. Experience as an engineer in banking and social media is of advantage. You are familiar with the use of an extensive set of programming languages, frameworks, libraries, and tools for projects of any scale and complexity. You have experience in working in the software and app development field and understand how to translate the technical information into the business language for partners. You have demonstrated strong presentation skills and excellent interpersonal and leadership skills. You bring excellent communication skills to the team, are self-motivated, proactive and target-oriented with a strong ability to learn and ability to manage multiple tasks in a culturally diverse and high paced organization. You are fully fluent in English and Swiss-German, and have a Swiss and/or EFTA/EU passport, or are otherwise eligible to work in Switzerland.

Your Perspectives   You will enjoy all the advantages of a successful company offering an exciting professional career in one of the leading growing multinational telecommunication companies. Training and personal development are ensured in Western Europe and abroad, as is a competitive salary package.

If you are interested in this exciting position, please send us your application in English.

dori*go!*
Modular Recruiting Services